

DEAF, DEAF WORLD

"Deaf, Deaf World" is a workshop developed at the National Technical Institute for the Deaf from an unpublished paper written by Susan Rose, Assistant Professor at Ohio State University on the Academic Faculty for Exceptional Children. This workshop is a valuable awareness tool for people who have little or no previous experience interacting and serving people with a hearing loss.

DEAF, DEAF WORLD

"Equal
Communication, Education and Access"

Have you ever wondered what it might be like to live in a world where the primary mode of communication was not your own?

DEAF, DEAF WORLD

PURPOSE: To illustrate the cultural experience of what it might be like for individuals to live in the deaf and hard of hearing world where the dominant mode of communication (visual) is different from the majority culture that uses spoken language. "Deaf, Deaf World" provides a hands-on experience for participants. Communicating through the spoken language is not allowed, but rather participants are encouraged to use whatever skills and ingenuity they have available to get their information, needs, or requests across to training leaders.

OUTCOMES/OBJECTIVES:

- To develop sensitivity and awareness of the communication needs of people with a hearing loss.
- To increase awareness of alternative communication strategies to be used when working with or employing people who have a hearing loss.
- To begin to challenge the assumptions people who can hear make about appropriate communication needs.
- To increase awareness of how a society who can hear created disabling conditions for people with a hearing loss.

Welcome to Deaf, Deaf World

- To develop basic knowledge about deaf culture.
- To increase access to vocational rehabilitation services, educational services, and employment opportunities for deaf and hard of hearing people.
